APPOINTED HEAD OF SCHOOLS OF COUNTY

General Johnson Once More Gets Ready to Clear Out of Washington

WASHINGTON — After nearly one year of hectic, spectacular pioneering work in Washington, it looks as if General "Ride 'Em" Hugh Johnson was about to shake dust of government service from his feet.

There have been reports that the high-pressure boss of the Blue Eagle was going to quit before, and there was one time last summer that he had a definite—though temporary—break with the President. This time, the General will step out—if he finally decides to do so—entirely for reasons of his own.

First of all he is tired. He has been working until all hours of the morning, has kept up this pace since the NRA began. Second, he is broke, has gone into debt heavily in order to bolster his modest government salary. Finally he admits that perhaps his basic idea of industrial self-government may not be possible of success.

The General, therefore, has laid tentative plans to let the Blue Eagle fly alone probably soon after Congress adjourns. To this end a complete recasting of the whole NRA set-up has been in progress. The pyrotechnics of labor strikes and Congressional bouts with the President largely have obscured this, but the command and policy-framing machinery of the NRA today is vastly different from a month ago.

Instead of everything revolving around Johnson as before, the Blue Eagle boss has decentralized, has given his Number Two men real power.

Two Friends

Johnson's retirement—when it comes — will not mean a break with the Administration. Roosevelt probably has no more genuinely loyal and devoted supporter than his NRA chieftain.

But despite the close friendship between the two men, despite the all-important place Johnson has held in Roosevelt's scheme of things, the inescapable fact is that "Ride 'Em Hard" Hugh basically is alien to the New Deal.

Between the President's fundamental economic philosophy and Johnson's there is a wide chasm. Roosevelt is inherently a liberal. Johnson is not.

Roosevelt, for instance approaches the root problem of government and business from viewpoint that government must rule and business be ruled. Johnson has a deep and caustic contempt for what he calls the "swineishness" of business. Few men speak more bitterly of the stupidity, shortsightedness, and downright incompetence of the great mass of businessmen.

But he sees the government-business issue from a widely different angle than his Chief. Johnson's aim is not for the government to rule business but for business to rule itself.

Two NRA's

The NRA, more than any other man's, is Johnson's creation. It graphically illustrates this underlying difference between the two men.

To the President, the NRA is an instrumentality—still in the formative stage by which the government, after shepherding and guiding industry into orderly and organized groups, will supervise and regulate it for its own, labor's, and — above all — the public's good.

To Johnson, the NRA also is a shepherd and organizer. But not by government rule. He sees the NRA as the initial step toward industrial "self-government."

Once industry has been rallied into orderly ranks he would have government bonds loosened. Except for an advisory representation, Johnson would then turn over entirely to industry the job of regulating itself.

In recent months, Johnson's belief in the capacity of industry to regulate itself has suffered disheartening reverses. He has emerged from stormy encounters with obdurate and defiant employers, big and small, spitting fire and damnation.

But, intrinsically, he still holds

COUNCIL MAY ADJUST LIQUOR SALE HOURS

Safety Director Ordinance to Determine When Stores Selling Intoxicants Shall Be Closed; R. G. Peters Named Provisional Store Cashier.

Indications were, Thursday, that city council will take steps to regulate the hours for sale of intoxicating liquors in this city.

Safety Director L. T. Shaner recommended Wednesday evening that an ordinance be passed regulating the time of closing places of business where liquor is sold. Council took no action during the meeting but it is believed legislation will be ready for presentation at the next meeting, April 18.

Solicitor Carl C. Leist reported to council that he has received a blank ordinance from the Department of Liquor Control which if enacted will give the city all the revenue collected from the violations of the liquor traffic instead of 50 per cent as now provided. The other half goes to the state.

The ordinance was read for the first time. After two more readings it will be ready for a vote.

PETERS NAMED

In the meantime the opening of the state liquor store here appeared nearer today when Robert G. Peters, N. Court-st, was announced as provisional cashier for the store.

Col. J. A. Hughes, state liquor director, is expected to officially appoint Mr. Peters within a few days.

The appointee while an applicant for the job, was not one of the three certified by the civil service commission for the appointment. They included N. E. Reichelderfer, Thomas Hedges and Alan Buchanan. It is reported that Reichelderfer declined the appointment. The job pays $1,200 a year.

COMPLETES PERSONNEL

The appointment of Mr. Peters completes the personnel of the store. Adrian Yates has been named supervisor and Earl Weaver clerk. The east side of the Wilkes building, W. Main-st, is ready to be occupied.

COLUMBUS, April 5.—Thirty-eight more liquor stores in various parts of the state were ordered stocked for business today by officials of the state liquor control department.

The stores will be stocked with approximately 2,000 cases of liquor each, comprising about 164 different brands. Shortly after the stores are stocked, they will be opened for business as quickly as possible.

With the orders today for the stocking of 38 stores, a total of 83 stores in the state will have been stocked by next April 11. In the meantime, work of leasing additional store sites in the state to fill the quota of 187 stores in the Ohio liquor store chain was going forward, although efforts for the time being were concentrated upon getting as many stores opened for business as rapidly as possible.

Circleville is not included in this list.

WHAT . . . COUNCIL . . . . DID

Gave Service Director William Justice and Solicitor Carl Leist power to act with the service committee in naming a foreman for the completion of the north end sewer job. The city must pay the foreman.

Referred the claim of Alfred Lee, lumberman, for $65.15 for stakes and wire for a CWA project to the finance committee.

Received the report of Mayor W. B. Cady that he collected $39.70 from fines and fees during March. More of this money was from traffic violations.

Received a report from Safety Director L. T. Shaner that March receipts at Berger hospital were $1,097.21.

Discussed the water ordinance in a committee session with no action taken. Since the ordinance was reported out of committee and not again referred it is possible a third reading will be called at the next meeting.

Heard Solicitor Leist report progress in the effort to change the present location of the western corporation line of the city.

Permitted the matter of the overflow of water from the Eshlman Milling Co. into the gutters along Mill, Clinton, and Union-st to remain with the service committee.

SUSPECT CONVICT IN BREMER CASE

Wealthy Banker To Question Man Wounded and Named Dillinger Aide.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 5.—Eddie Green, wounded ex-convict pal of desperado John Dillinger, was under heavy federal guard today in Ancker hospital as a possible suspect in the $200,000 ransom kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer.

Department of justice operatives plan to have the wealthy banker and kidnap victim view Green on the chance that Bremer might be able to identify the captive as one of his abductors.

While the comely red-headed woman companion captured with Green was being grilled by federal operatives Bremer was summoned to the department of justice offices to assist in the questioning. The woman, insisting that she is "Mrs. Green," had $1,500 in her possession when she was seized.

OHIOAN BURNED

ASHTABULA, April 5.—Vito Calogero, 47, was cremated today when fire destroyed his cottage at North Kingsville, five miles east of here.

MOTHER, WORRIED, LEAPS INTO POND WITH 2 CHILDREN

SUSQUEHANNA, Pa., April 5.—Worried over her husband's unemployment, Mrs. Irving Hibbard, 25, clasped her two small children in her arms and plunged with them to death in a pond on their farm near Lawton, District Attorney Edward P. Little declared today after an investigation.

The bodies of the woman and the two children, John, 3, and an infant girl, were found in the pond by her husband.

DELAY VOTE ON TAXATION

Action May Be Taken Late Today With Outcome On Sales Tax Doubtful.

COLUMBUS, April 5.—Like a temperamental circus performer perched atop a high diving platform and steeling his nerve for the big plunge into a shallow tank, the house of representatives drew a deep breath today and made ready to drive into the pockets of Ohio taxpayers to the tune of $70,000,000 annually.

The betting odds on the success or failure of the impending plunge were about even, with no one being in a position to foretell the outcome accurately until after the splash and spray have subsided following a roll call on the 3 per cent retail sales tax, basic plank of the administration's tax program.

TIME UNCERTAIN

There was almost equal uncertainty as to exactly when that roll call will come. Administration leaders would go no farther than

OHIO LIQUOR PROBE VOTED

Five Claims Made Against Commission By Akronite; Gingher Is Prober.

COLUMBUS, April 5.—The long-threatened senatorial investigation of the operations of the state liquor department materialized today with the adoption of a resolution offered by Sen. Carl D. Sheppard (R) Akron. Col. John A. Hughes, the department director, said he "welcomed" the investigation.

Five major charges that the liquor administration had overstepped its bounds were contained in the Sheppard resolution, which obtained only a bare majority required for passage by the Senate, the vote being 17 to 11.

Excepting Sen. Walter Ruff (R) Canton, the Republican senators voted solidly for the investigation which will be conducted by a committee of eight senators. Ruff explained his opposition by saying the "monopoly should have an opportunity to get started first."

CITES 5 CHARGES

Sheppard made the following charges against the liquor department:

1. Factional and partisan favoritism has prevailed in selection of the personnel of the department despite civil service regulations.

2. Contracts for the purchase of excessively large quantities of liquor have been entered into by the department at unreasonably high prices.

3. Executive officials of the department have adopted a dictatorial attitude of bureaucratic design, oblivious alike to the will of the public and to the duties of the press and of co-ordinate branches and divisions of government.

4. Contracts for leases of state stores and warehouses, contracts for insurance, bonds, hauling and

Davey Appears In Lancaster Saturday

LANCASTER, April 5.—Martin L. Davey, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, will speak in City hall here, Saturday at 7:30 p. m.

Davey is opposed for the nomination by Lieut.-Gov. Charles Sawyer and former Lieut.-Gov. William G. Pickrel.

LAYING GAS LINE

Rapid progress is being made in laying a new gas line from Oakland to Tarlton. The work was started two weeks ago.

DILGER TO RETIRE FORM SCHOOL POST

E. C. Dilger, former superintendent of the Darby-twp school at Derby, will retire as head of the Millersport, Fairfield-co, school at the conclusion of the present term to devote his time to management of his farm in Delaware-co.

BENFORD FUNERAL

Funeral services will be conducted Friday at 3:30 p. m. at St. Philip's Episcopal church, Rev. L. C. Sherburne officiating, for Mrs. Florence A. Benford, wife of B. F. Benford, who died Wednesday morning.

Story of Activities of Pickaway-Co. Men Against Morgan's Raiders Told

Editor's Note—

Preparation to try to prevent Morgan's return across the Ohio river with Pickaway-co men in action related in today's narrative from C. C. Coe's book on the progress of the Pickaway countians.

In the meantime I embraced an opportunity to visit the fortifications erected a few miles below. On Sunday, the 19th, the supposition was that Morgan, being baffled in his attempt to cross the Ohio would attempt to cross at an excellent ford four miles below our camp at Scott's Landing. Col. Lynch was ordered to that point to throw up defenses covering the ford, taking with him as assistants, Quartermaster N. J. Turney, Sergeant Major William M. Drum, and Quartermaster Sergeant Joseph P. Smith.

With characteristic promptness and energy, he at once explored the ground, of itself an arduous task, for the hills back of the river at this point are from three to five hundred feet high, intersected by numerous gorges, and traversed by many roads, all of which had to be examined and scientifically barricaded to prevent a flanking movement by the rebels. All this the Colonel, who knew

DETROIT TOOL WORKERS IRED; STRIKE FEARED

Police Called As General Walk-Out Is Ordered; Wages Disputed

INDUSTRY HALTED

Strike Planned Saturday Unless Pay is Met

DETROIT, April 5.—Unrest seethed in the ranks of automobile workers again today, as a strike paralyzed one plant and another general strike of tool and die workers was threatened.

Five thousand workers at the Motors Products corporation, walked out this morning, paralyzing the plant which was forced to close. The workers struck shortly after the nine a. m. shift of 1,500 men appeared for work.

CALLED SATURDAY

Meanwhile, the Mechanics Education society—which last year almost paralyzed the industry by calling a strike of tool and die makers—delivered a strike ultimatum to the managements of Detroit tool and die job-shops. The ultimatum called for a general strike of tool and die workers Saturday unless the employers reply to the union's demands for a 20 per cent pay boost and a 36-hour five-day week.

A wage dispute the details of which were not made public caused the walkout, according to spokesmen for the workers. Police reserves were sent to the plant as the strikers formed picket lines. Strikers said the afternoon shift, due to start at 2:30 p. m. would not go to work.

HURT INDUSTRY

The job shops involved in the newest labor dispute of a trouble-ridden industry furnish most of the dies and special tools used in the motor plants of the Detroit area. A tie-up in these shops would have an effect almost as serious as the tool and die strike of last summer which delayed the advent of 1934 car models from one to two months.

With President Roosevelt's automotive labor board in Wisconsin trying to settle the strike of Nash workers, the situation here was viewed as grave.

SCHOOLS TO CLOSE

Schools of the city and county will be dismissed Friday to permit teachers to attend the Citizens' Conference on the Crisis in Education in Columbus. The conference opens tonight.

The regular education conference will be held at Ohio State university, Saturday. All teachers are expecting to attend this meeting.

WILLIAM MOWERY TAKEN IN ATHENS

William Mowery, 65, a former resident of Saltcreek-twp, died Wednesday at Athens state hospital after a stroke of apoplexy.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ellen Mowery, S. Court-st.

Private funeral services will be conducted at the home of Mrs. Ellen Bochart, Tarlton, Friday at 2 p. m. with Rev. S. C. Elsea in charge. Burial will be in the Imler cemetery by H. E. Defenbaugh and Sons.

Friends may call until the hour of service.

WHITE STUDYING DORGER'S CASE

COLUMBUS, April 5.—At the instigation of William Leonard, Hamilton-co Democratic chieftain, Governor George White was understood today to be "looking up" the case of Clarence A. Dorger, former Cincinnati banker now serving a sentence in Ohio penitentiary for embezzlement.

Leonard, the governor said, "just mentioned the case" and remarked that sentiment in Cincinnati favored a parole for the former banker.

What action, if any, will be taken in Dorger's case, it was learned, will hinge upon an interpretation now being awaited from the attorney general's office with regard to the former banker's sentence.

TO INSPECT R. A. M.

Vanishing Student

Despondency over his studies is believed to have been the cause of the disappearance of George Holcomb Malone, student at the University of North Carolina, according to his friends. He is the son of John W. Malone, bank president, of Pensacola, Fla.

15 HUNTED IN FLOODED AREA

One Body Found As Torrent Sweeps Through Oklahoma; Families Lost.

ELK CITY, Okla., April 5.—Rescue workers combed the flooded Washita river valley today for the bodies of 15 missing persons believed to have drowned in the debris-strewn waters which have washed up one body.

Wreckage of scores of homes swept away by the flood torrent hindered the efforts of rescue workers who employed row boats to travel the strong current.

All hope had been abandoned for nine of the 15 persons still missing in the swirling waters that covered a strip two miles wide and seven miles long in Rogers Mills-co.

The body of Stella Fenter, 10, was recovered from the drift eight miles east of Hammon.

L. L. Fenter, father of the dead girl, his wife and two other children, were missing and feared to have perished.

Mrs. A. M. Adams and five daughters were swept away to an almost certain death when their home was washed against a bridge and was battered to pieces four miles west of Hammon.

An airplane pilot aided boat parties in rescuing 20 persons marooned on the roofs of floating houses. Many survivors spent 12 hours or more in the tree tops before they were taken to safety.

The National guard, the Red Cross and the Federal Emergency Relief administration co-operated in giving assistance to the flood area.

BOYS LEAD IN PICKAWAY-CO SENIOR TESTS

Harman Heads Circleville; Miss Tipton Leads in County

Thomas David Harman, Jr., son of Mrs. T. D. Harman, W. Mound-st, and Alice Elizabeth Tipton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Tipton, Williamsport, are the smartest seniors in Circleville and Pickaway-co schools, if the senior scholarship test conducted at the high school on March 24 is a criterion.

Harman, a fifth year pupil, led the entire county with a grade of 228 1-3 out of a possible 400 while Miss Tipton's grade was 215 2-3 leading the county. Another Circleville high school senior, Robert Paul May, Wayne-twp, was higher than Miss Tipton with 219 1-3.

The grades were announced today by D. L. Buchanan, superintendent of Pickaway-co schools. They are subject to revision by the state department of education.

43 TAKE TEST

Forty-three seniors, all of whom were in the upper 35 per cent of their class, took the examination. The seniors were divided into two classes for the first time, Circleville's being classed alone and the county schools in the same manner.

Circleville students finished in the following order; Harman, May, Lyman England, Ned Hitchcock, Dale Ankrom, William Weldon, William Ashbrook, Mildred Francis, Martha Rader, and Helen Colville.

County students finished in this order: Miss Tipton, Ralph Aldenderfer, Saltcreek; Wayne Wilson, Pickaway; Edwina Schlegel, Ashville; David Adams, Washington; Jasper Hedges, Ashville; Mary Ann Stevenson, Ashville; Joe McKinley, Muhlenberg; Mary Hanover, Walnut; Ruth M. Smith, Ashville; Marjorie Ruth Shupe, Saltcreek; Georgia Bower, Ashville;

Mabel Fausnaugh, Scioto;

A lunch will be served following the initiation.

Jackson-twp Man, There 14 Years, Given Contract for Two Years

TAKES JOB AUG. 1

Election Unanimous After Lengthy Meeting

George D. McDowell, head of the Jackson-twp schools for the past 11 years, was elected superintendent of Pickaway-co schools for two years when the county board of education met Wednesday evening.

He will take office August 1, succeeding D. L. Buchanan, S. Pickaway-st, whose term expires at that time.

The new superintendent will receive an annual salary of $[illegible].

Mr. McDowell was selected when the board members, [illegible] Hoover, Jackson-twp; [illegible] Young, Pickaway-twp; [illegible] Monroe-twp; J. F. [illegible] twp, and A. J. Dunbar, [illegible] twp, discussed applications several hours. The board had held no previous meeting to discuss the choice of a superintendent so a round [illegible] cussion of the various [illegible] was held.

VOTE UNANIMOUS

The discussion finally [illegible] down to a few names [illegible] board finally voting [illegible] to employ Mr. McDowell. [illegible] the names of applicants [illegible] announced by the board, [illegible] learned that L. E. [illegible] Pickaway-twp su[illegible] J. Bowers, Williamsport [illegible] tendent, and O. E. [illegible] Fairfield-co superintendent, [illegible] erly of Muhlenberg-twp, [illegible] among the leading [illegible]

Mr. Buchanan did not [illegible] re-employment and notified C. Warren, Pickaway-twp [illegible] tendent, former county [illegible] chief.

Mr. McDowell, a native [illegible] Summit-co, has had 14 [illegible] school administrative experience. He served three years as [illegible] at Jackson before becoming [illegible] intendent. He obtained his eighth grade certificate in Summit-co and graduated from Akron West high school.

MUSKINGUM GRADUATE

The superintendent-elect is a Bachelor of Arts degree was awarded at Muskingum college, New Concord. He is now working on his Master of Arts degree having done work in school administration and history at Akron university and Ohio State university.

Mr. McDowell, married and the father of three children, has never delved into political controversies and has never taken part in a school board fight. He is a member of the local Presbyterian church and has been active in its Sunday school.

Mr. Buchanan on August 1 will have completed two years seven months and 29 days as superintendent of county schools. He came here from Carroll-co to replace Milton S. Cox after the latter resigned to become deputy commissioner of prohibition enforcement for Ohio. Mr. Cox had served four months and one day after being elected to fill the position formerly held by M. C. Warren for 16 years.

TASK DIFFICULT

County board members had a difficult task in selecting a superintendent from the fine list of applications they received. Any of a number of the school men who applied for the job would have proven excellent choices. Their final selection was made after careful study of the qualifications of all applicants.

Mr. Buchanan has not yet announced his plans for the future.

Boggs Leader of Corn-Hog Group

John G. Boggs, W. Union-st, who, [illegible] Pickaway-co wheat allotment committee, has been selected as president of the Corn and Hog Producers association. The organization was perfected at a meeting of the 14 township chairmen at the Farm Bureau, Wednesday evening.

John H. Dunlap, Jr., near Williamsport, chairman of the Deercreek-twp committee, was named vice president; Miss Ethel Brobst, of the Farm Bureau, treasurer, and Guy Dowdy, county agent, secretary.

Paul Hay, Harrison-twp, and Frank Beatty, Muhlenberg-twp, were named the county allotment committee and C. H. Armstrong, Saltcreek-twp, and Wilbur Brinker, Walnut-twp, were appointed to select a location for the office of the association. Mr. Boggs, Mr. Hay and Mr. Beatty was chosen to arrange for publication of the names of contract signers. The officers of the association are to secure such equipment as will be necessary to take care of its business.

The next meeting will be on April 17.

Twelve hundred and fifty contracts covering 1,400 farms have been signed with 410 declining to join in the program. According to the census there are 1,762 farms in Pickaway-co of 150 acres as an average. The Farm Bureau has reported that on the farms which have been contracted under the corn-hog plan the average yield of corn is about eight bushels more per acre than on the farms not joining showing that the best farm land of the county is included in the program.

An average of 3,200,000 bushels of corn 85,000 head of hogs have been produced annually in this county.

WILLIAMSPORT LETS GAS PIPE CONTRACT

A contract to furnish gas pipe for the new line to be laid in Williamsport has been let to the National Supply Co., Lancaster, on its bid of $3,439.72.

Four other bids were received.

When only one bid for excavation of ditches was received the village council did not take action.

16 KIWANIANS IN PORTSMOUTH VISIT

Sixteen members of the Kiwanis club led by Sheriff Charles [illegible] cliff journeyed to Portsmouth Wednesday evening, to deliver district's Fellowship chest. The chest was brought here last by the Northwest Columbus.

The speaker of the evening, Holcombe Parker, [illegible] tor for the Norfolk [illegible] railroad, who discussed [illegible] tion of transportation. His talk was [illegible] Buchanan.

UP TO FERRELL

CLEVELAND, April 5.—Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland Indians, today declared the next move is up to Wesley Ferrell in the current hold-out game between the former Indian hurling ace and the Cleveland club.

The Indians have withdrawn their offer of $25,000 made to Ferrell for his release. The pitcher made no reply to the suggestion. Now, whether Ferrell plays ball this year in the majors depends on the pitcher, himself, Bradley said.

Training Camp Notes

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 5.—Walter Johnson and his Cleveland Indians were lamenting today because Carl Hubbell, ace moundsman of the New York Giants and generally considered the best hurler in the National league, cannot face them every day as the two clubs continue their circus our northward. The Indians found Hubbell a "soft touch" at Meridian, Miss., yesterday, the Clevelanders winning over their New York rivals by a score of 7 to 0.

ORLANDA, Fla., April 5.—The Brooklyn Dodgers, jubilant over their two consecutive triumphs over the Boston Red Sox, where to meet another hub aggregation, the Braves, here today. The Dodgers now boast a record of 4 won and 6 lost against major league opponents. Linus Frey, youthful short-stop, who was struck on the head by a pitched ball, several days ago, rejoined the club today. It will be at least a week before Frey is able to play again, however.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 5.—Twice triumphant over the Atlanta Crackers, the touring New York Yankees arrived here today for another crack at Southern league opposition. They meet the Birmingham club today. The coming of the Yankees is always a gala event in Birmingham because of the presence of Chapman, Walker, Ewell and other native sons, in the New Yorkers' lineup. The Yanks defeated Atlanta, 10 to 5, yesterday.

MORGAN'S RAID

nothing of the country, was compelled to do, and to take, too, the responsibility of its being properly done.

GROUND UNEXAMINED

The commander of the whole expedition, Col. Runkel, though it might have reasonably been expected of him under the circumstances, had not examined the ground, being otherwise too busily engaged at headquarters.

It may be safely said that never was work more thoroughly or faithfully done than this. Col. Lynch, I am informed, did nothing upon mere conjecture or report, but personally examined every point himself before expending any labor upon it. Whoever told him of any roads leading over or around the hills, was forthwith ordered to mount and point it out to him. And several who were compelled to ride with him for half a day, were very careful to keep out of his way thereafter, declaring that nothing could induce them to follow him again on such constant duty.

Immediately after the examination of the ground was completed, the colonel set his force, consisting of 300 or 400 unarmed militia, to work, and in less than 48 hours from the time he first saw the ground, he had two lines of rifle pits, extending from the river to the hills, completed; and as for the quantity of timber cut down to obstruct roads and passages, no person can have any idea or ever will have, except perhaps the owners thereof, or the district supervisor.

The position chosen, and the manner in which it was fortified, received the highest commendation from the commander of the brigade, Col. Hill, of Urbana, a graduate of West Point and a practical engineer. A single regiment, in my opinion, in the rifle pits, assisted by a few pieces of artillery placed in the proper position, could successfully resist the attack of 20,000 men, while any small body attempting to charge the works would be literally annihilated. But to the great disappointment of our men, Hobson, and Judah used Morgan up before he got to the point, and sent him with the remnant of his men in another direction.

And here I am constrained to pay a deserved tribute to the sterling patriotism of the Hon. W. P. Cutter, near whose house the rifle pits were dug, for the very liberal manner in which he entertained both officers and staff, and all who desired to partake of the bountiful supply of food constantly spread before them.

The "Spring Thaw" party held at the Pickaway Country Club Wednesday evening was a successful affair with over 150 members and guests in attendance.

Dancing was enjoyed on the veranda with music furnished by Harold Dresbach and his nine-piece orchestra. Cards and other games were enjoyed by many throughout the evening. Marion Sensenbrenner sang several solo numbers accompanied at the piano by Carl Palm.

The enthusiasm shown at the party indicates a successful season for the club.

A buffett lunch was served by Ralph Barger and his assistants.

3 Canal Routes Series Subject

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the first of a series of articles on the canal routes now under consideration in Pennsylvania and Ohio.)

By JAMES C. KINKAID

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 5.—This city the center of a cyclopean canal traffic—a port on the Gulf of Mexico, the great lakes and the eastern seaboard!

That, today, is the hue and cry of local advocates of an all-Pennsylvania canal route extending between the golden triangle of Pittsburgh and the city of Erie, Pennsylvania's great lakes' port.

Despite the loud clamor for this proposal, another faction here is just as emphatic in demands for a canal route through the iron and steel manufacturing area of Youngstown.

At the head of the canalized Ohio river and the junction of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers, Pittsburgh is one of the most important ports of inland America. Both of the latter streams are canalized for scores of miles above Pittsburgh.

ALL THREE BACKED

But in addition to the two proposals which would vitally affect the economic status of Pittsburgh two all-Ohio canals are also being backed by equally ardent supporters. These are the Cincinnati-Toledo and Portsmouth-Sandusky routes.

In a nut shell, there are four proposals for all-water transportation between the Ohio river and Lake Erie. They are:

1. The Cincinnati-Toledo route. This canal would follow the Miami river from Cincinnati and join the Maumee river in the northern section of Ohio, following this stream to Toledo.

2. The Portsmouth-Sandusky route. In this route, the course would leave the Ohio river at the mouth of the Scioto and proceed almost due north to join the Sandusky river. This proposal, like the Cincinnati-Toledo, is an all-Ohio route.

3. The Beaver-Mahoning route. This proposal, the only one of the four that is interstate in scope, is also one of the "short" routes between the Ohio River and Lake Erie.

4. The Allegheny-French Creek route. This is the only all-Pennsylvania canal. It would follow the Allegheny river to Franklin where it would go over the French Creek to Conneaut Lake. From there the canal would be constructed almost due north to a point on Lake Erie near North Girard. There is an alternate scheme in which the canal would connect with the Lake at the harbor of Erie.

DISCUSS CONTROL

In addition to these routes, there is also a flood control project which is expected to have some influence on the final decision on the canal route selected.

From the standpoint of economic justification many local enthusiasts of the canal systems maintain that one of the Pittsburgh routes would be the logical choice.

In many event, it is not unlikely that Pittsburgh soon may become an important port on the Great Lakes and perhaps even on the eastern seaboard despite its location of more than a hundred miles from either shore.

(The next article discusses the Allegheny River-French Creek route.)

DELAY VOTE

to venture the opinion that it would be late this afternoon or tonight, if everything goes well.

Scheduled for a vote yesterday, the controversial sales tax measures did not even reach the floor of the house ostensibly because the Democratic caucus committee had not completed insertion of amendments, many of them of a technical nature, which they deemed necessary for the bill's passage.

Leaders of the anti-sales tax group freely gave vent to the opinion that the delay was due not alone to the amendments and to reprinting of the bill, accusing the sales tax steering committee of stalling for time while they endeavored to win over enough votes to insure their measure's passage.

It will require 68 votes to pass the much disputed bill in the lower house. Only 42 of the approximately 175 Democratic members have thus far agreed to be bound to vote for the caucus program which is built around the sales tax. Caucus leaders were counting on about 12 Republicans votes and hoped to pick up the others needed from the rank of the independent Democrats.

Rep. Corwin H. Swan, leader of the bi-partisan farm block which has a voting strength of about 25 members, said the rural representatives who are opposing the sales taxes had been approached with a proposition from the Democratic majority to swing 15 votes to the sales tax in return for passage of the road assessment refund bill, much desired by the rural districts.

REMAINS UNMOVED

While Swan said the farm bloc has never attempted to tell its members how they may or may not vote on the floor of the house, he added that he was unmoved in his own opposition to the sales tax and expected a majority of the rural organization to maintain a similar policy.

Indisputable evidence that the administration Democrats were dangling the road assessment bill before the eyes of recalcitrant ruralities in an attempt to get them to go along with the sales tax program came out of the latest Democratic caucus.

In the caucus it was agreed to add to the administration's permanent tax program the Armbruster highway bond refunding bill and the Mildren highway assessment rebate bill.

Under the Armbruster bill $38,000,000 in road bonds issued up to Jan. 1, 1934, would be refunded out of proceeds from the gasoline tax over a period of 15 years, thus permitting farmers whose property adjoins highways to escape further highway assessments.

The Mildren bill would rebate to farmers 50 per cent of all highway assessments they have paid since 1914, amounting to about $7,000,000.

Kingston Plans Its Centennial

KINGSTON, April 5.— The village of Kingston celebrated its 100th anniversary as an incorporated municipality today, the town having received its charter on this date in 1834. Although no definite celebration was held Thursday, a centenary celebration will be staged sometime in August. Flags were displayed however on Thursday denoting the anniversary.

A few highlights in the history of Kingston are that 40 acres of land were deeded to Thomas Ing by James Ritchie for the town site in 1816. Ing then proceeded to have the town laid out in lots and the village of Kingston was born. Prior to 1816 a small town site known as Ingtown was located on what is now the main street of the village.

The first residence erected in Kingston is now owned by Mrs. Josephine Radcliff and is located on N. Main-st.

Many distinguished men of the early days stopped in the village on their way to Washington D. C., the town being situated at that time on the main line of travel from the west and southwest to the federal city.

The original settlement of the community dates back to the year 1798, when a group of Presbyterians located about a mile west of the present site and organized a church society known as Mt. Pleasant Presbyterian church.

COTTON TOPS

5 tablespoons Crisco (the digestible shortening)
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1½ cups flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons cocoa
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup milk
halved marshmallows

Blend the Crisco with the sugar and egg to easy stirring. Crisco blends easily because it c to you creamed in the can. Sift the dry ingred and add them alternately with the milk to Crisco mixture. Pour in Crisco-ed muffin pans they are two-thirds full. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) about 20 minutes. Just before moving from oven, place a halved marshmallow top of each cake. KNAVE'S GIRL

By JOAN CLAYTON

COPYRIGHT 1932, KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

Next day at noon Clark telephoned.

Patricia sat down beside the telephone. Clark's voice, happy and confident, came to her over the wire, Clark's voice planning their afternoon, as he had so often planned it. Would she lunch with him? She had to clear her throat, before he heard her say she would.

"Then, I'll meet you at our usual place."

"Yes, Clark."

She did not say that this luncheon would be their last together. But that knowledge was in her heart as she dressed. She selected her costume carefully, mechanically, choosing his favorite color, his favorite hat. As she had been used to do, she took a bus and rode down town along Fifth Avenue, brilliant in the sunshine, crowded with women shoppers. At the familiar side-street she descended, saw Clark waiting in his usual place in his car, saw him spring to the curb, as she came down the steep little flight of stairs from the bus top. A moment later his arm was linked through her arm, he was smiling down at her in the old, contented way.

"You look tired, honey," he said, as he helped her up the step of the low-swung roadster and dropped on the creaking leather cushions at her side.

"I am tired."

"Is something wrong?"

"Everything is," she said and took the plunge. There must be no more meetings between them. Julian objected.

"Julian objects! That's a laugh," said Clark, half annoyed, half amused, wholly unconcerned. The girl's face did not lighten. "Surely," the man exclaimed, surprised, "surely you aren't serious. You're not going to let him get away with any such nonsense?"

The silence deepened between them. Patricia was staring at the shiny metal of the dashboard. Clark regarded her anxiously, perturbed, his forehead drawn in puzzled lines. The girl raised eyes that shone with tears.

"I can't do anything else, Clark. I—after all I live with him."

"That's just it," he said peremptorily and in some vague fashion, relieved. "That's been the trouble all along. I've been wanting for some time to talk to you seriously. Now listen," he resumed, proceeding in matter of fact tones, "now listen to me. There's no reason why you should depend on Julian Haverholt another minute. You're far too modest about your own abilities."

"It's not a question of my own abilities."

"You wait till I finish," he swept on, eager to present his plan. "There's a new bridge club opening out on the Island — mother has something to do with it — I can slide you into a place there in double-quick time. In fact——"

Patricia interrupted quickly.

"Julian depends on me."

"What rot," he said, laughing at her. "I never saw a man more capable of taking care of himself."

"I can't leave him," she persisted, frightened. "I can't let you be responsible for getting me into your mother's club."

"Of course you can. I want to do it. Don't talk about my responsibility. I'm surprised you could even think such a thing. Personally," he said in a rush, "I'm glad Julian has given you this chance to strike out for yourself. I haven't been awfully happy about you, Patricia," he admitted, looking at her gravely. "I hate to criticize Julian," he continued, embarrassed, "but just the same I'm going to. Julian may be the greatest bridge player in the world but there are other things in the world besides bridge?"

"What things do you mean?"

"Honor, for instance," said Clark, plowing grimly ahead despite his companion's distress. "You don't understand Julian's reputation, Patricia. I do. People say he's a racketeer; they call him the Al Capone of bridge."

"He calls himself that," put in the girl faintly.

"That's all right for him. He's a man. You're too sweet, honey, to be mixed up with Julian Haverholt and his egotistical, deliberately shocking, deliberately unmoral notions of how to get ahead. I know you're loyal to him. I admire you for it. But, you can't convince me that you approve of his methods."

"I don't know what I approve of," she protected, helpless and distrait. Nothing was going as she had planned it.

"I know you don't approve," said Clark decidedly. "You're far too fine and decent. Then, why should you suffer for Julian's sins? There's no reason except a sentimental reason. Believe me there isn't. This is your chance to make a break; you've got to take it even if it seems hard to you. It's natural, Patricia, it's only right that you should think first of your own reputation."

She was thinking of nothing else. Julian held her reputation in his hands. She wanted to scream that at Clark. The words clogged in her throat. What would he think of her if he really understood the situation? He had called her fine and decent.

She only said mechanically, "I've got to stay with Julian. I must, Clark."

"You must not. He's given you a legitimate complaint. You can leave him tomorrow. This Long Island bridge club will accept you today —I'm sure of it. I'll telephone this afternoon."

Despair chilled the girl. She shook her bright head.

"No, Clark, no. I'm staying with Julian."

He had been holding her hands. He dropped them now. He was suddenly convinced. With his conviction came hurt and anger. They were still parked on the side-street. People were hurrying in and out the buildings nearby, happy people, busy people. Patricia stared at them. She turned when Clark said flatly:

"So you aren't interested in my proposition."

"I can't accept it, Clark. I am grateful but I can't let you do such a thing for me."

"Of course, my mother's club is small," he conceded bitterly. "It wouldn't offer you the sort of future that Julian offers."

They were talking like strangers. Nothing seemed natural or right. She could not make it right. She could not make him see. The world was all awry. She was quarrelling, quarrelling with Clark.

"Do you mean, Patricia, that you intend to obey Julian's order? Do you actually mean to say that you won't see me again?"

"You must understand. It's not by my wish or my desire."

"Oh, I understand all right," he remarked, emotionlessly. "I understand exactly how I rate with you. No uncle has such rights as you have given to Julian. That man has you hypnotized. He crooks his little finger and you jump to his bidding. Why should you? Tell me that. Why should you?"

That was it. She could not tell him. Anything was better than a forced confession. This was not the time or place to explain to him. That time and place were far in the past. Better a clean, sharp break than that he should lose his essential confidence in her integrity. Let him think that she considered Julian Haverholt's backing more important than his friendship! Let him think she loved the blaze of notoriety! Let him think anything except the truth!

The color dyed her face but she looked at him bravely from beneath a drift of shining hair. She had never seemed more dear to him; he had never seemed more dear to her. Yet they faced each other across a chasm dug by Julian Haverholt's hands.

"I'd better go," she muttered, twisting at the handle of the door.

"Aren't you going to stay for lunch?" he asked politely as he might ask a casual acquaintance. "Or have you a date for bridge? I wouldn't like to interfere with your career."

"I wish—oh how I wish that you could understand. I've been a coward, Clark. Some day you'll know I've been a coward."

She was gone. Clark was to remember long afterwards the pleading, frightened look in her eyes, the grip of her cold and desperate fingers. Just now he was remembering that she had said goodbye and that she had chosen to leave her destiny in Julian Haverholt's hands.

"It's all over," thought Patricia as she walked dazedly down the white, hot street. "It's all over between Clark and me."

The days went on, wretched days. Patricia tried to lose herself and to forget her misery in a pasteboard, counterfeit world. She played the game of bridge from early morning till late at night. She became hard and shrewd and calculating. She gambled as Julian gambled and with all his passionate desire to win. Clark had thought her a careerist. Very well, she would be. She would build herself a career in cards. Julian noticed the change in her, the change that he himself had brought about. He did not like it. Once or twice, worriedly, anxiously for him, he would ask how things were going.

"You've done enough," she would advise him levelly. "Now suppose you let me be." She asked him then, "Whom are we playing tonight?"

"I thought you might like a rest from bridge. Wouldn't you like to take in a show?"

"I wouldn't. The only thing I want to do with you, Julian, is play bridge. I have my future to think of," she informed him bitterly. "Have you forgotten the tournament next week? Don't you want me to keep in practice? Aren't you afraid we might not win that beautiful, shiny cup?"

"Do I deserve that, Patricia? What are you trying to do? Are you trying to put me through an inferno?"

She looked at him. Her smile was mocking.

"I'd love to do just that," she told him softly.

PATTERN 9962

An unusual thing about this adorable model—it has a way of looking smart and young anywhere—on the street, at home, morning or afternoon. What more could one ask of a frock—except that it flatter its wearer! This one does—for note how the collar is made, with a bit of gathered fullness at the edge of the neck, so that it just rolls over with flattering grace. The center skirt seam that continues up into the bodice tends to slenderize the silhouette. Silks or cottons printed or plain are grand with an organdie collar for contrast.

Pattern 9962 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3½ yards 39 inch fabric and ¼ yard contrasting.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern.

Whose Fault?

The Surly or Sulky Boy

Children seldom sulk because they are "bad." Something is wrong with them physically. Crossness is a symptom of biliousness, the same as a coated tongue. So, don't blame your child, do something to help him. Not with doses of any strong physic! Anything that drains the system and saps a child's strength only makes matters worse. There is a way to treat sluggishness in children without using violent medicines, and it straightens them out. See next column:

A healthy child is a happy child. Good health and good behavior go together. A boy whose bowels are moving every day, and moving thoroughly, couldn't stay cross five minutes! To prevent those bilious upsets in children, or to correct the constipated condition caused by the habitual use of some cathartic, just use senna. This natural laxative is preferable to any drug. California Syrup of Figs contains the proper amount of senna. You can get it anywhere, but get the genuine California Syrup of Figs.

FAR OFF PORT

Somewhere beyond the sea
There is a far-off port
That waits for me—
Has waited long, but still must wait,
For sure my ship will be so late.

Bold pirates wait for me
Within that far-off port
Beyond the sea;
So God with intercepting hand
Must change my course to other land.

Wild storms must come to me
Before my happy port
I chance to see;
Within a Treasure Island fair,
I'll ever be on high-land there.

MOVIES

AT THE GRAND

An even dozen well known players are in the principal roles of Columbia's "East of Fifth Avenue" now showing at the Grand Theatre.

The twelve "name players" are: Wallace Ford, Dorothy Tree and Mary Carlisle, featured in the leading roles of the picture, with Walter Connolly, Walter Byron, Lucien Littlefield, Willard Robertson, Maude Eburne, Louise Carter, Fern Emmett, Harry Holman and Katherine Campbell in support.

AT THE CLIFTONA

It took an attack of acute appendicits to turn Fredric March into an actor. Until that day, in 1920, when he was taken to a hospital from the National City Bank in New York, he believed that Fate had cast him for the part of a financier. If he had continued in that belief you would never have seen him in Noel Coward's "Design for Living" coming on Friday and Saturday to the Cliftona Theatre, starred with Gary Cooper, Miriam Hopkins and Edward Everett Horton.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

TRADE MARK REGISTERED

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

to his theory. He believes "industrial self-government" should be given a further trial.

The President does not — and never has.

No Forgotten Man

No matter what happens to the General, his ornate collection of cross-words, his passion for berating Big Business, his ornate collection of cuss-words, his thoughtfulness in reading daily to inmates of the children's ward in the hospital when he was ill, the clouds of glorious headlines which trailed ever in his wake, never will be forgotten even by a blase and semi-somnolent Washington.

The character of Hugh Johnson is a mass of contradictions.

The personification of two-fisted, hell-roaring action, Johnson also is a man of extraordinary intellectual caliber, a genuine scholar, a lover of poetry and fine literature, an unusually talented writer and stylist.

Few nights go by that he does not read a few passages from the Bible before retiring. This is not because he is religious, but because of the joy and intellectual release he finds in the beauty and dramatic sweep of the Scriptural language.

Sports are too tepid for Johnson's dynamic, pragmatic well-springs. He exhausted himself in work, more work. If there is nothing particular at the moment to do, he buries himself in some brain-fagging tome.

Reading is his major recreation. Another is reminiscing with old army cronies. His stories, terse and pangent, savoring of picket-lines and mess rooms, are about the "old" army, before the World War, with its Paul Bunyanesque figures of great liquid intake and fantastic adventures.

Johnson's youthful soldiering days along the Mexican border are very dear to him. When in a mellow mood he speaks with deep tenderness of the great chaparral plains of the Rio Grande valley. Says he:

"When I get through with all this, that's where I'm going. Down there where the owls make love to the chicken, and it is starry, and quiet, and peaceful."

Perhaps it is to the land of the owl and the chicken that General Johnson is going when he leaves the land of the Blue Eagle.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

THE professor that was visiting with some of his friends, in San Francisco, was kinda proud of himself, so when the little girl

asked him what kind of work he did, he said, "Why, I'm a geologist."

"That's funny," she says, "because I'd like to know what a geologist does for a living."

"Oh, I just carry a little hammer around with me and use it to crack open rocks."

"Now I know," says the kid. "I got an uncle that's a geologist. He got that way for killing a man. He'll be out in five years."

VARICOSE VEINS
Healed By New Method

No operations nor injections. No enforced rest. This simple home treatment permits you to go about your business as usual—unless, of course, you are already so disabled as to be confined to your bed. In that case, Emerald Oil acts so quickly to heal your leg sores, reduce any swelling and end all pain, that you are up and about again in no time. Just follow the simple directions and you are sure to be helped. Your druggist won't keep your money unless you are.

TO LOSE FAT

Miss M. Kainer of Brooklyn, N. Y. writes: "Have used Kruschen for the past 4 months and have not only lost 35 pounds but feel so much better in every way. Even for people who don't care to reduce, Kruschen is wonderful to keep the system healthy. I being a nurse should know for I've tried so many things but only Kruschen answered all purposes." (May 12, 1932).

TO lose fat SAFELY and HARMLESSLY, take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—don't miss a morning—a bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle—get Kruschen Salts at any drugstore in America. If not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.

SOCIAL EVENTS PLANNED FOR FEDERATION MEETING

Many social events are being planned for the delegates and visiting club women who attend the annual convention of the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs when it meets at Hotel Statler in Cleveland April 10 to 13. The fortieth anniversary of the founding of the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs will be celebrated at this meeting and a dinner honoring the pioneers will be given Wednesday evening.

Tuesday afternoon, the first afternoon of the conference, the members of the Women's club of Cleveland will entertain with a tea at their club house, 3535 Euclid-ave, from 3:30 to 5 o'clock. A dinner honoring presidents of federated clubs will be given Tuesday night.

A reception given by the Cleveland Women's Art club will be another social feature. The reception will be held at the Korner and Wood Gallery from 4:30 to 6 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. At this time an exhibit of paintings and crafts will be held.

Thursday noon, a luncheon will be held in honor of Dr. Josephine L. Peirce of Lima, chairman of the Division of Child Welfare in the Federation and second vice president of the General Federation. The luncheon will be held in the Higbee Co. lounge. Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president of the General Federation and Mrs. C. S. Selover, one of the Founders of the Federation, and others will bring greetings at that time.

The outstanding social event of the convention will be the banquet Thursday evening at 6:30 in the Ball room of the Statler hotel, honoring Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, of Washington D. C., president of the General Federation of Women's clubs.

The local Monday club belongs to the Federation and will send as its delegates Mrs. Hildeburn Jones, newly elected president, and Mrs. Hulse Hays. Alternates are Mrs. Charles Gilmore and Mrs. Emmitt Crist.

Mrs. Bernard W. Young, of Pickaway-twp, extended the hospitality of her country home to thirty four members and guests of the Emmitt's Chapel Ladies' Aid Wednesday afternoon, when they assembled for their monthly meeting. She was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Peter Waple.

The president, Mrs. Ralph Boggs, presided during the business session and led the devotional service.

Readings entitled, "Necessity of Training the Disciples," "Christ and His Family," and "Medical Missions," were given by Mrs. Laura Wilkens, Miss Gladys Rader and Mrs. Charles Waple, respectively.

Rev. W. A. Moore offered a prayer and a short talk on "Unfinished Tasks" was given by Mrs. Dennis Rader. Mrs. George Hunsicker, of Williamsport, interestingly told of Foreign Missions.

Rev. Moore, who celebrated his birthday yesterday, was presented a gift from the society.

Two new members were taken in at this session, Mrs. George Jury and Miss Alda Bartley.

Mrs. Cliff Miller, who was in charge of the program, introduced Fern Dodd, of Columbus, who gave a splendid talk on Hawaii.

A social hour ensued and delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses.

The May meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ed Dumm and daughter, Miss Hazel, of Pickaway-twp. They will be assisted by Mrs. Abe Pontius.

FREDRIC MARCH GARY COOPER MIRIAM HOPKINS

Out of the 64 calls for the local fire department in 1933, 34 were turned in by telephone.

WHEN EVERY SECOND COUNTS!

A small blaze . . . gaining headway every second . . . then the ominous crackle of faster burning . . . and then your home a raging furnace . . . the fire beyond control. A telephone call will bring the fire fighting equipment of this city to you faster than any other means of communication.

TELEPHONE CALLS OF "FIRE" ARE ALWAYS GIVEN PREFERENCE OVER ANY OTHER CALL BY OUR LOCAL OPERATORS!
